We match you to the right co-owner and the right aircraft under a structure that protects you from the risks of D.I.Y. partnerships, and provides access comparable to sole-ownership.

YOUR AIRPLANE. YOUR SCHEDULE. HALF THE COST.
You can afford sole-ownership, but you don’t fly enough hours per-year to justify the cost.

Options like supplemental charter of your aircraft just don’t make sense, while fractional and membership models increase your cost-per-hour. Neither is ideal. The most cost-effective solution is to partner, but self-managed partnerships often end poorly.

Our team of industry experts set out to solve these issues, the genesis of which became Partners In Aviation (PIA) Managed Co-Ownership. Today, PIA offers a structured program that offers the financial advantages of a partnership with the independence, and peace of mind, that comes with sole ownership.

“With matches flying from coast-to-coast and a map full of current opportunities, we invite you to hear from our clients, discuss the program with us, and decide if PIA Managed Co-Ownership is right for you.”

UNTIL NOW, YOU’VE HAD 4 OPTIONS FOR AIRCRAFT OWNERSHIP:

For operators flying less than 200 hours per year, justifying the cost of sole-ownership can prove difficult.

1. SOLE-OWNERSHIP
   - Best option when flying 200+ hours per year.
   - Owner bears 100% of the cost and market depreciation.
   - The asset is under-utilized.

2. FRACTIONAL/MEMBERSHIP CHARTER/JETCARD
   - Best option when flying around 50 hours per year.
   - Lowest upfront cost. Highest net-cost per hour.
   - Aircraft and crew vary with each trip.

3. SOLE-OWNERSHIP WITH CHARTER SUPPLEMENT
   - Historical path for 100-150 hour per year operators.
   - Owner bares 100% of acquisition and operating costs. Charter revenue provides small cost-offset.
   - Issues of availability and liability prove undesirable.

4. DO-IT-YOURSELF PARTNERSHIP
   - Acquisition and fixed costs cut in half, resulting in the lowest net-cost.
   - Challenges include: finding a compatible partner, scheduling conflicts, tax/title entanglements, agreeable exit-path.
   - Managing the partner relationship often proves difficult.

“My ‘stretch goal’ was the CJ3+, but it was difficult to justify based on my usage. PIA was able to match me with someone to make that goal justifiable. We’ve now ordered a new CJ3+ which I would never have done as a sole-owner. Cutting the acquisition and fixed costs in half allowed me to step up to my ultimate choice.”

PROTECTION FROM RISK

After analyzing what often makes traditional partnerships prone to failure, we worked with industry experts to develop a new structure that provides a formula for success.

WHAT SETS US APART:

MANAGEMENT: Each match includes a manager – chosen by you – to facilitate all aspects of operation.

LEGAL STRUCTURE: Our legal structure differs from a partnership in four key areas.

1. HOW THE AIRCRAFT IS OWNED
2. HOW THE AIRCRAFT IS SHARED
3. OPTIONS FOR EXIT
4. PROTECTION FROM DEFAULT

PIA’s Managed Co-Ownership structure is designed to attract those who can afford the whole aircraft, but would rather not. The agreement encompasses the entire relationship in detail – from program entry to exit, and involves an aircraft management company to help facilitate.

“This program is more viable than anything I’ve seen in the past due to the structure. The agreement handles every decision up front, so there should be no issues to hassle with down the road, including the exit plan.”
